

For service providers ASKPEACE

The ASK PEACE team works collaboratively with a network of mental health support services that have been established by SA Health to address the needs of people dealing with the many challenges presented during the COVID-19 situation.

Our role is to provide mental health support to people who come from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds, who have been negatively impacted by the current situation.

We:

- Accept self-referrals and referrals from other government, non-government and community-based services
- Provide therapeutic work, case work, information, advocacy and referral services
- Are all senior practitioners who come from diverse backgrounds
- Speak many languages other than English and have access to certified interpreters
- Provide cultural consultancy support for service providers to assist in meeting the needs of the individual clients and their families
- Provide and/or support community education initiatives.
